NEW QUESTION: 2
Which description describes the low latency queuing algorithm?
A. Empty queue 1. If queue 1 is empty, empty queue 2, then empty queue 3, unless a packet for a higher queue arrives.
B. A flow-based algorithm that simultaneously schedules interactive traffic to the front of a queue to reduce response time and fairly shares the remaining bandwidth among high-bandwidth flows.
C. This feature brings strict priority queuing to CBWFQ.
D. An administrator defines the traffic classes based on match criteria, including protocols, access control lists, and input interfaces.
E. Packets are placed into a single queue and serviced in the order they were received.

Answer: C

Explanation:
The Low Latency Queueing feature brings strict priority queueing to Class-Based Weighted Fair Queueing (CBWFQ). Strict priority queueing allows delay-sensitive data such as voice to be dequeued and sent first (before packets in other queues are dequeued), giving delay-sensitive data preferential treatment over other traffic.

Without Low Latency Queueing, CBWFQ provides weighted fair queueing based on defined classes with no strict priority queue available for real-time traffic. CBWFQ allows you to define traffic classes and then assign characteristics to that class. For example, you can designate the minimum bandwidth delivered to the class during congestion.

For CBWFQ, the weight for a packet belonging to a specific class is derived from the bandwidth you assigned to the class when you configured it. Therefore, the bandwidth assigned to the packets of a class determines the order in which packets are sent. All packets are serviced fairly based on weight; no class of packets may be granted strict priority. This scheme poses problems for voice traffic that is largely intolerant of delay, especially variation in delay. For voice traffic, variations in delay introduce irregularities of transmission manifesting as jitter in the heard conversation.

The Low Latency Queueing feature provides strict priority queueing for CBWFQ, reducing jitter in voice conversations. Configured by the priority command, Low Latency Queueing enables use of a single, strict priority queue within CBWFQ at the class level, allowing you to direct traffic belonging to a class to the CBWFQ strict priority queue. To enqueue class traffic to the strict priority queue, you configure the priority command for the class after you specify the named class within a policy map. (Classes to which the priority command is applied are considered priority classes.) Within a policy map, you can give one or more classes priority status. When multiple classes within a single policy map are configured as priority classes, all traffic from these classes is enqueued to the same, single, strict priority queue.

One of the ways in which the strict priority queueing used within CBWFQ differs from its use outside CBWFQ is in the parameters it takes. Outside CBWFQ, by using the ip rtp priority command, you specify the range of UDP ports whose voice traffic flows are to be given priority service. Using the priority command, because you can configure the priority status for a class within CBWFQ, you are no longer limited to a UDP port number to stipulate priority flows. Instead, all of the valid match criteria used to specify traffic for a class now applies to priority traffic. These methods of specifying traffic for a class include matching on access lists, protocols, and input interfaces. Moreover, within an access list you can specify that traffic matches are allowed based on the IP Differentiated Services Code Point (DSCP) value that is set using the first six bits of the Type of Service (ToS) byte in the IP header.

Although it is possible to enqueue various types of real-time traffic to the strict priority queue, we strongly recommend that you direct only voice traffic to it. This recommendation is made because voice traffic is well-behaved, whereas other types of real-time traffic are not. Moreover, voice traffic requires that delay be nonvariable in order to avoid jitter. Real-time traffic such as video could introduce variation in delay, thereby thwarting the steadiness of delay required for successful voice traffic transmission.

NEW QUESTION: 3
What is the actual horizontal mounting hole spacing (center-to-center) based on the EIA310 standard for 482.6 mm (19 inch) racks?
A. 482.6 mm (19 inches)
B. 465 mm (18.31 inches)
C. 495.3 mm (19.5 inches)
D. 450 mm (17.72 inches)
Answer: B

NEW QUESTION: 4
The VP of customer service has expressed concern over a project in which you're involved. His specific concern is that if the project is implemented as planned, he'll have to purchase additional equipment to staff his customer service center. The cost is substantial and was not taken into consideration in the project budget. The project sponsor insists that the project must go forward as originally planned or the customer will suffer. Which of the following is true?
A. The conflict should be resolved in favor of the customer.
B. The VP of customer service is correct. Since the cost was not taken into account at the beginning of the project, the project should not go forward as planned. Project initiation should be revisited to examine the project plan and determine how changes can be made to accommodate customer service.
C. The conflict should be resolved in favor of the VP of customer service.
D. The conflict should be resolved in favor of the project sponsor.
Answer: A
Explanation:
Conflicts between stakeholders should always be resolved in favor of the customer. This question emphasizes the importance of identifying your stakeholders and their needs as early as possible in the project.
