By default, how does a GET VPN group member router handle traffic when it is unable to register to a key server?

A. All traffic through the router is dropped.

B. All traffic is queued until registration is successful or the queue is full.

C. All traffic is forwarded through the router encrypted.

D. All traffic is forwarded through the router unencrypted.

Answer: D

Explanation:

In the basic GETVPN configuration, the traffic passing through group members will be sent in clear until it registers with the Key Server. This is because the crypto ACL is configured on the KS and GM will get that information only after the registration is successful. This means for a short period of time the traffic can go out unencrypted after a GM is booted up or the existing GETVPN session is cleared manually.

This mode is called "fail open" and it is the default behavior. This behavior can be turned off by configuring "Fail Close" mode on the GM.
