NEW QUESTION: 3

Referring to the exhibit, R1 and R2 are QFX5100s and are acting as VXLAN Layer 2 Gateways for VLAN
100 using PIM-SM signaling.
What will cause R2 to send a (*.G) PIM Join towards the RP?

B. R2 will send a (*.G) PIM Join when it receives broadcast, multicast, or unknown unicast traffic from Host A.
C. R2 will send a (*.G) PIM Join when it first learns the MAC address of a locally attached host.
D. R2 will send a (*.G) PIM Join when its VLAN 100 configuration is committed.
Answer: D
Explanation:

Reference:
https://www.juniper.net/documentation/en_US/junos/topics/concept/multicast-pim-sparse- characteristics.html
Explanation:
It's A because if you consider that Host B may send zero traffic whatsoever, how can Host A find Host B's MAC address? It would have to ARP for it. So, because Host B may lie dormant until Host A initiates communications, it is completely necessary for R2 to (*,G) PIM Join the VXLAN group for VLAN 100.
C is impossible before the (*,G), B and D are shades of the same chicken-and-egg scenario that makes A the only viable answer.

With Power BI Desktop, when you connect to your data source, it's always possible to import a copy of the data into the Power BI Desktop. For some data sources, an alternative approach is available: connect directly to the data source using DirectQuery.
DirectQuery: No data is imported or copied into Power BI Desktop. For relational sources, the selected tables and columns appear in the Fields list. For multi-dimensional sources like SAP Business Warehouse, the dimensions and measures of the selected cube appear in the Fields list. As you create or interact with a visualization, Power BI Desktop queries the underlying data source, so you're always viewing current data.
