NEW QUESTION: 1Your company deploys an Azure App Service Web App. During testing the application fails under load. The application cannot handle more than 100 concurrent user sessions. You enable the Always On feature. You also configure auto-scaling to increase instance counts from two to 10 based on HTTP queue length. You need to improve the performance of the application. Which solution should you use for each application scenario?Answer: Explanation: Explanation Box 1: Azure Content Delivery Network The benefits of using Azure Content Delivery Network (CDN) to cache Azure data include better performance and user experience for end users who are far from a content source, and are using applications where many 'internet trips' are required to load content. Box 2: Azure Redis Cache Azure Redis Cache is based on the popular open-source Redis cache. It is typically used as a cache to improve the performance and scalability of systems that rely heavily on backend data-stores. Performance is improved by temporarily copying frequently accessed data to fast storage located close to the application. With Redis cache, this fast storage is located in-memory with Redis Cache instead of being loaded from disk by a database. References:
