NEW QUESTION: 1The information classification scheme should:A. classify personal information in electronic form.B. be performed by the information security manager.C. classify systems according to the data processed.D. consider possible impact of a security breach.Answer: DExplanation:

Explanation/Reference:Explanation:Data classification is determined by the business risk, i.e., the potential impact on the business of the loss, corruption or disclosure of information. It must be applied to information in all forms, both electronic and physical (paper), and should be applied by the data owner, not the security manager. Choice B is an incomplete answer because it addresses only privacy issues, while choice A is a more complete response. Systems are not classified per se, but the data they process and store should definitely be classified.

NEW QUESTION: 2 Which cloud storage type resembles a virtual hard drive and can be utilized in the same manner and with the same type of features and capabilities? A. Unstructured B. Volume C. Object D. Structured Answer: B Explanation: Explanation Volume storage is allocated and mounted as a virtual hard drive within IaaS implementations, and it can be maintained and used the same way a traditional file system can. Object storage uses a flat structure on remote services that is accessed via opaque descriptors, structured storage resembles database storage, and unstructured storage is used to hold auxiliary files in conjunction with applications hosted within a PaaS implementation.

NEW QUESTION: 3 A. Option D B. Option C C. Option A D. Option B Answer: C Explanation: When it comes to building applications for the cloud, John Gossman, an employee of Microsoft, thinks agility and portability are essential. "You don't want to get locked in too much to a particular vendor, strategy, technology, whatever," he says. Likewise, he added, you aren't likely to last long if your plan is to pick a single public cloud vendor and host everything there. References: http://www.theregister.co.uk/2014/12/06/microsoft_linux_and_the_cloud/
