NEW QUESTION: 2Your network contains an Active Directory domain.The domain contains two sites named Site1 and Site2.

Site1 contains four domain controllers.Site2 contains a read-only domain controller (RODC).You add a user named User1 to the Allowed RODC Password Replication Group.The WAN link between Site1 and Site2 fails.User1 restarts his computer and reports that he is unable to log on to the domain.The WAN link is restored and User1 reports that he is able to log on to the domain.You need to prevent the problem from reoccurring if the WAN link fails.What should you do?A. Create a Password Settings object (PSO) and link the PSO to the Domain Users group.B. Add the computer account of User1's computer to the Allowed RODC Password Replication Group.C. Add the computer account of the RODC to the Allowed RODC Password Replication Group.D. Create a Password Settings object (PSO) and link the PSO to User1's user account.Answer: BExplanation:

<http://technet.microsoft.com/en-us/library/cc730883%28v=ws.10%29.aspx>Password Replication PolicyWhen you initially deploy an RODC, you must configure the Password Replication Policy on the writable domain controller that will be its replication partner.The Password Replication Policy acts as an access control list (ACL). It determines if an RODC should be permitted to cache a password. After the RODC receives an authenticated user or computer logon request, it refers to the Password Replication Policy to determine if the password for the account should be cached. The same account can then perform subsequent logons more efficiently.The Password Replication Policy lists the accounts that are permitted to be cached, and accounts that are explicitly denied from being cached. The list of user and computer accounts that are permitted to be cached does not imply that the RODC has necessarily cached the passwords for those accounts. An administrator can, for example, specify in advance any accounts that an RODC will cache. This way, the RODC can authenticate those accounts, even if the WAN link to the hub site is offline.NoteYou must include the appropriate user, computer, and service accounts in the Password Replication Policy in order to allow the RODC to satisfy authentication and service ticket requests locally.When only users from the branch are encompassed by the allow list, the RODC is not able to satisfy requests for service tickets locally and it relies on access to a writable Windows Server 2008 domain controller to do so. In the WAN offline scenario, this is likely to lead to a service outage...Password Replication Policy Allowed and Denied listsTwo new built-in groups are introduced in Windows Server 2008 Active Directory domains to support RODC operations. These are the Allowed RODC Password Replication Group and Denied RODC PasswordReplication Group.These groups help implement a default Allowed List and Denied List for the RODC Password ReplicationPolicy. By default, the two groups are respectively added to the msDS-RevealOnDemandGroup and msDS-NeverRevealGroup Active Directory attributes mentioned earlier.By default, the Allowed RODC Password Replication Group has no members. Also by default, the AllowedList attribute contains only the Allowed RODC Password Replication Group.By default, the Denied RODC

Password Replication Group contains the following members:
-Enterprise Domain Controllers-Enterprise Read-Only Domain Controllers-Group Policy Creator Owners-Domain Admins-Cert Publishers-Enterprise Admins-Schema Admins-Domain-wide krbtgt account
By default, the Denied List attribute contains the following security principals, all of which are built-in groups:-Denied RODC Password Replication Group-Account Operators-Server Operators-Backup Operators-Administrators
The combination of the Allowed List and Denied List attributes for each RODC and the domain-wide Denied RODC Password Replication Group and Allowed RODC Password Replication Group give administrators great flexibility. They can decide precisely which accounts can be cached on specific RODCs.
