The underlying objective in decisions relating to capital structure is to:

- A. minimize the tax burden
- B. maximize value for all stakeholders
- C. maximize value for shareholders and debt holders
- D. maximize shareholder value

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation

The objective of decisions relations to capital structure is to maximize the value to shareholders. The management of the company is entrusted with the job of maximizing shareholder value, and this objective is generally achieved by attempting to maximize enterprise value. Enterprise value includes the value of both debt and equity, and since debt has a fixed claim on the assets of the business, maximizing enterprise value also maximizes the value of equity.
