DRAG DROP

You work as a Network Administrator for Hail International. The company has a Windows Server 2008 network environment. The network is configured as a Windows Active Directory-based single forest single domain network. The company's headquarters is located at Los Angeles. The company has branch offices in San Jose, Oakland, and San Francisco. All branch offices are connected to the headquarters by using T1 leased lines. The fragment of the company's network is shown below:

The routers are used to connect to the T1 lines to configure the private network. Each router at each location is a server that is running Microsoft Windows Server 2008. The management of the company wants to secure the WAN communication between the offices. The solution provided by you must not be expensive.

Choose and place the correct actions required to configure the necessary components of the network in order to accomplish the task.

Select and Place:

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

In order to accomplish the task, you will have to configure the routers at all locations to use IPSec in tunnel mode. Tunnel mode protects the WAN traffic. If you configure IPSec on routers, no security for the WAN communication is required on other servers and workstations.
