NEW QUESTION: 1

Universal Containers has millions of rows of data in Salesforce that are being used in reports to evaluate historical trends. Performance has become an issue, as well as data storage limits. Which two strategies should be recommended when talking with stakeholders?

- A. Use Data Loader to extract data, aggregate it, and write it back to a custom object, then delete the original records.
- B. Configure the Salesforce Archiving feature to archive older records and remove them from the data storage limits.
- C. Combine Analytics Snapshots with a purging plan by reporting on the snapshot data and deleting the original records.
- D. Use scheduled batch Apex to copy aggregate information into a custom object and delete the original records.

Answer: B,D

NEW QUESTION: 2

Under which account(s) can the Oracle Clusterware processes run for the Linux platform?

- A. only the Grid Infrastructure owner account
- B. some under the Grid Infrastructure owner account and some under the root account
- C. only the database software owner account
- D. only the root account
- E. some under the database software owner account and some under the root account

Answer: D

Explanation:

Because Oracle Clusterware works closely with the operating system, system administrator access is required for some of the installation tasks. In addition, some of the Oracle Clusterware processes must run as the system administrator, which is generally the root user on Linux and UNIX systems and the LocalSystem account on Windows systems.

NEW QUESTION: 3

A company that provides wireless services needs a solution to store and analyze log files about user activities. Currently, log files are delivered daily to Amazon Linux on Amazon EC2 instance. A batch script is run once a day to aggregate data used for analysis by a third-party tool. The data pushed to the third-party tool is used to generate a visualization for end users. The batch script is cumbersome to maintain, and it takes several hours to deliver the ever-increasing data volumes to the third-party tool. The company wants to lower costs, and is open to considering a new tool that minimizes development effort and lowers administrative overhead. The company wants to build a more agile solution that can store and perform the analysis in near-real time, with minimal overhead. The solution needs to be cost effective and scalable to meet the company's end-user base growth.

Which solution meets the company's requirements?

- A. Develop a Python script to failover the data from Amazon EC2 in real time and store the data in Amazon S3. Use a copy command to copy data from Amazon S3 to Amazon Redshift. Connect a business intelligence tool running on Amazon EC2 to Amazon Redshift and create the visualizations.
- B. Use an Amazon Kinesis agent running on an EC2 instance in an Auto Scaling group to collect and send the data to an Amazon Kinesis Data Firehose delivery stream. The Kinesis Data Firehose delivery stream will deliver the data directly to Amazon ES. Use Kibana to visualize the data.
- C. Use an Amazon Kinesis agent running on an EC2 instance to collect and send the data to an Amazon Kinesis Data Firehose delivery stream. The Kinesis Data Firehose delivery stream will deliver the data to Amazon S3. Use an AWS Lambda function to deliver the data from Amazon S3 to Amazon ES. Use Kibana to visualize the data.

D. Use an in-memory caching application running on an Amazon EBS-optimized EC2 instance to capture the log data in near real-time. Install an Amazon ES cluster on the same EC2 instance to store the log files as they are delivered to Amazon EC2 in near real-time. Install a Kibana plugin to create the visualizations.
