NEW QUESTION: 2

An accountant has compiled the financial statements of a nonissuer but declines to issue a compilation report. This is an example of:

- A. An appropriate reporting decision, as long as the financial statements are prepared in conformity with GAAP.
- B. An inappropriate reporting decision, if the accountant is not independent with respect to the nonpublic entity.
- C. An appropriate reporting decision, if the compiled financial statements are not expected to be used by a third party.
- D. An inappropriate reporting decision, because SSARS require that a report be issued whenever an accountant is associated with financial statements.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

Choice "C" is correct. If the accountant has compiled the financial statements of a nonissuer, and the compiled financial statements are not expected to be used by a third party, the accountant may decline to issue a compilation report.

Choice "A" is incorrect, since SSARS allow the accountant to decline to issue a compilation report when the compiled financial statements are not expected to be used by a third party.

Choice "B" is incorrect, since there is no requirement that the accountant be independent when the accountant declines to issue a compilation report. Note that an accountant who lacks independence is still permitted to compile the financial statements of a nonissuer entity.

Choice "D" is incorrect, since there is no requirement that the financial statements be prepared in conformity with GAAP when the accountant declines to issue a compilation report.
