NEW QUESTION: 1

Amazon EC2 instance is running Amazon Linux 2. The instance is part of an Amazon EC2 Auto Scaling group. The instance is in a state that prevents you from stopping it. You need to stop the instance. Which action should you take?

A. Stop the instance.
B. Stop the instance and then start it.
C. Terminate the instance.
D. Terminate the instance and then create a new instance.

Answer: C. Explanation: You can't stop an instance that is in a state that prevents you from stopping it. You can terminate the instance. When you terminate an instance, Amazon EC2 sends a signal to the instance that tells it to shut down. The instance then shuts down and you can't interact with it anymore. Amazon EC2 then destroys the instance's storage and releases any associated resources. Amazon EC2 doesn't delete the instance's AMI or any other resources that you've created. You can create a new instance from the AMI.
